The Center for Contemporary Art Offers Online Spring Classes for Adults

We are happy to announce the spring session of classes for adults will begin online April 13th. More than twenty classes will be available online in a variety of mediums, as well as additional late spring classes and workshops that are still scheduled to take place at The Center.

We hope these online classes will create the same sense of community that happens at The Center each day. Using the ZOOM platform students can see and interact with the teacher and other students, receive personal feedback and instruction from the teacher, participate in live demonstrations, and share their work and ideas.
